Philosophies

My philosophies are based on objectives of the life is to achieve the academics excellence through teaching, research and academics writings. In turn, support the young generations of global village to think differently and to apply the creativity in the process of life, and to enhance the social welfare of the citizens of the globe.

Major Contribution to Academia

A: Revisited the development of accounting (Harvard Business School) with modern approach i.e., accounting without debit – credit by equation theory; covering the all spheres of bookkeeping and accountancy for legal, as well as managerial purposes. The work has been extended research-based work done after my doctoral study completion, and the said work is universally recognized across the globe. The same work has been copyrighted in my name, and being continuously published by Oxford University Press, UK with global marketing rights with Oxford.

B: Developed Management Accounting from the basics to the managerial applications, same academia work is also copyrighted in my name, and being continuously published by Oxford University Press, UK with global marketing rights with Oxford.

C: Enhanced working is done on Foreign Exchange Management, through the full-fledged application of Direct Quote mechanism. The work is copyrighted in my name, and being continuously published by Wiley, USA with global marketing rights with Wiley.

Research Interest

1. Focus on review papers.
2. To undertake empirical research relating to financial accounting, cost and management accounting, and financial management.
3. To explore untapped area of empirical nature for development of working methodology, tools, and techniques for performance improvement through finance and accounting tools and techniques.

Teaching Interest

I am imparting necessary knowledge and training to participants to improve effectiveness in corporate and non-corporate working through case method of teaching. My attempt to keep them updated with contemporary developments in financial accounting, cost and management accounting and financial management, by incorporating such latest development through updating the syllabuses from time to time. I continuous maintain and develop close academics interactions with participants and fellow faculty members within the institute.

Examining the international practices in finance and accounts area and develop an integrative framework to expose the students to strategy formulation, implementation, and control through highlighting the value addition activities. It is my endeavour to provide the theoretical knowledge along with real-life-time cases relating to operational options, methods, and strategies available to corporate managers those want to expand the business.

Strong emphasis always put up by me on dialogue, case study and participative discussions by participants. Case studies along with newspapers recent news and published annual reports are widely used to illustrate the different dimensions of finance and accountings functions of the organizations. The instructing methods followed by me provide the opportunity to participants to utilize a repertoire of practical and theoretical tools. I am encouraging the students to learn more, provide them the perceptions, and/or new insights to do research work and to identify what is pertinent and relevant to the situations, to analyze the situations, and to solve problems.

I am capable to sharpen the analytical skills, of students, in managerial decision-making situations, through report writing. I am continuously helping them to develop skills to analyze problem situations, work out the alternatives, and communicate recommendations or decisions. Students are being given cases to analyze and write analytical reports. Classroom sessions augment the thinking process and help in the development of analytical and implementation skills for managerial decision-making process through accounting tools and techniques.

Group project methodologies are followed with a specific emphasis on skill refinement by creating certain relevant experiences and getting students to reflect on them systematically. Case studies and exercises are used in most of the sessions besides group discussions, reviews, and interactive lectures. I am assisting, the educational institutions wherever I am associated, to conduct need-based management development training programs in different aspects of management accounting and financial management for middle and senior managers.

To update the self, pursued courses on E-learning Theory and Practice, Learning to Learn online, Diploma in Teaching Skills for Educators, Introduction to New Thinking in Classroom; Diploma in Decision Making Using Financial Accounting, Professional Bookkeeping and Accounting, Financial Accounting – Basics; at Alison Education Management, US during the period of October 2020 to December 2020.
